

a

A recent scientific study (SURE, 2024) has investigated the opinions of residents in Switzerland on biodiversity and CO2-emissions. According to this study, 97.5% of residents in Switzerland regard biodiversity as more important than you thought they would. The following graph summarises these results.

b

The same study (SURE, 2024) has further investigated the opinions of residents in Switzerland on land-use and CO2-emissions. According to this study, 98.4% of residents in Switzerland regard CO2-emissions as more important than you thought they would. The following graph summarises these results.

